As an eyewitness, I, Anna-Maria Weber, have been successfully active on the art market for more than ten years.

Being from a family of artists, I studied fine arts at the „Burg Giebichstein“ University of Art and Design in Halle. I then managed a group of studios in Berlin for six years until I founded „Kondensstreifen“, an art gallery for contemporary art, which I ran as the owner.

In connection with this, I deepened my studies of art and registered for art history, philosophy, and cultural science classes at the „Humboldt University“ in Berlin. One focus of my studies was on documentary filming.

While working for the Berlinale Film Festival in the „technical coordination“ department since 2003, I was able to pursue my passion for film and film production while gaining valuable work experience.

At the same time I received an education in software applications - such as Final Cut Pro, Adobe After Effects, and Logic Pro - for the post-production of films while specializing in short-film production. Further films followed.

In addition, I have been teaching corporate identity, corporate design, layout, and communication design at the „City VHS Berlin“ since 2006.
